Base Ball.

The match game of base ball at Siler City on the 24th between the Siler City School and Liberty School was hugely enjoyed by a large number of spectators. At the end of the fifth inning the score stood 26 to 2 in favor of Liberty.

Changes Among Railroad Men.

Maj. J. A. McLauchlin, of the Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railway, has been made Supervisor of cars, rolling stock, etc., and is now absent on official business, and Capt. W. H. Pemberton has taken Maj. McLauchlin's place as conductor of through mail and passenger train. They are both competent men, and deserve their promotion.

The Centennial Looming Up.

The most important "overt act" looking to the proper celebration of the Centennial is now going on—the erection of the grand reviewing stand on the market-place, to be pierced by arch-ways for the convenience of wagon and carriage travel. The building is also receiving a new dress, and it will be a "dandy" market-house, we tell you. The trees about the square have been cut down, and it is now in order for us to say that "the old landmarks are disappearing"—but we won't.

Y. M. C. A. Notes—Gymnasium.

No doubt those interested in the gymnasium of the Young Men's Christian Association will hail the tidings of its completion with joy. Yes, after a delay, on the road, of nearly one month, the apparatus has made its appearance, and the gymnasium will be ready for operation by Friday night next, November 1st, and all those attending the Book Reception at that time may avail themselves of the additional pleasure to those already mentioned, of the bowling alleys, &c.

Subject of Gospel meeting for next Sunday afternoon, The Slavery of Sin, Rom., 6: 12-23.

The Observer's Centennial Issue.

THE OBSERVER'S Centennial Issue will be a "thing of beauty and a joy forever." Among other things it will contain pen pictures of ex-President Davis, Senators Ransom and Vance, Governor Caswell (of 1789) and Gov. Fowle (of 1889), our State officers, the Chief Marshal and his assistant Marshals, also a number of the prominent professional men of Fayetteville of to-day. In addition to this it will contain several special articles on the Centennial from the pens of the most gifted writers of the State, Senator Ransom's oration, &c. Chief Marshal Carr's assistants are a handsome set of gentlemen, and will do honor to the occasion.

Beautifying the Suburbs.

Maiden Lane possesses natural advantages to render it one of the most attractive streets for homes in the city. Branching diagonally from upper Hay Street, just in rear of the depot of the Wilson Short Cut, it reaches Cross Creek at Goodwin's Bridge by a graceful curve, and overlooks the prettiest part of town. To these natural advantages Mr. F. W. Thornton is adding the attractions of artistic architecture and the durable and substantial comforts of well-built dwellings. Two are now completed—taken by Capt. W. E. Kyle and Mr. E. H. Jennings—and four more are now erecting, to be ready for occupancy as soon as the contractors, with all due regard to thoroughness in the work, can complete them. As to the style and excellence of the houses, Mr. Thornton's splendid stores and handsome residences in every quarter of the city tell what sort of a builder he is. Naturally, then, he is beset with applications for these buildings by anxious tenants, and we learn that he could to-day rent fifty dwellings if he had them.

Red Springs and Lumber Bridge I. O. O. F. Lodges.

On the night of the 22nd they instituted another new Lodge at Lumber Bridge with 22 members, and installed the following officers:

Financial Secretary—D. H. McLean.

The Jail Disturbance More in Detail.

In our account of the attempted outbreak at the jail last week we were able to give only the bare fact of the rush on the jailor and the wounding of one of the prisoners, as at the time the pages were just on the point of being placed on the press. The details of the affair as recited below show the attack upon Mr. Kinlaw to have been preconcerted and desperate.

At 2:30 o'clock last Friday Mr. Kinlaw, accompanied by his little son Aubrey, eight years of age, and a colored woman bearing the dinner of the prisoners, entered the jail, closing the front door and relocking it, and handing the key to his son. Unlocking the block and grate doors of lower dungeon No. 3 fronting on the stairway, the jailor stepped back, and the colored woman with the dinner shoved open the door of the cell, in which were confined eight prisoners. Immediately, John Hatcher seized the woman and pushed her back upon the jailor, who, on account of the narrow space between the cell and the staircase, was greatly cramped in his actions. Martin Jones and Chas. Kelly then rushed to the assistance of Hatcher, and the three grappled with Mr. Kinlaw, when a desperate struggle took place—young Kinlaw, with praiseworthy presence of mind, springing up the stairway, and throwing the key out of the grating on the corridor of the second floor. The evident intention of the prisoners was to drag the jailor into the cell, but at the door there was a halt—they unable to get him any farther, and he unable to relieve himself. During the struggle his clothes were torn off, with his watch and chain, and he gave Hatcher a violent blow, jamming him against the door of the cell, and himself falling to the floor, carrying Kelly with him, whom he seized by the neck with his teeth. At this moment Martin Jones broke from the other men, and attempted to open the women's cell, at whom Mr. Kinlaw snapped his pistol, which he had finally succeeded in bringing to bear. Jones then caught young Kinlaw in his arms, holding him in front of him for protection, and retreated into the women's cell, which the boy had opened, when a female prisoner snatched the boy from Jones, whereupon Kinlaw fired, the ball striking the iron grating, or Jones would doubtless have been killed. As the jailor was being gradually drawn farther into the cell, he managed to fire again, this time wounding Wm. Buie in the hand. This gave immediate relief: the wounded man yelled murder, and the rest cowered back into the cell. A large crowd had gathered at the alarm about the jail, but no one could gain entrance, until Mr. J. W. Atkinson was guided by the boy's cries to find the key and open the door. Capt. Flowers, the City Marshal, then entered, and assisted the jailor in securing the prisoners, returning Jones to his own cell, and restoring order. Drs. Hodges and Marsh, who were soon at the jail, ascertained that Buie's wound was slight, and quiet once more reigned. The little boy deserves much credit for so well "keeping his head" throughout the whole disturbance.

Hatcher, Kelly and Jones are now ironed down to the floor of the cell.

Tally-Ho!

Some of the friends of Miss Mary Gray, of Greensboro, determined yesterday afternoon to give that young lady from the red hills of the up-country the opportunity of enjoying our method of hunting the fox in the sand-barrens of the Cape Fear section, and a party was organized, consisting of Miss Gray, Miss Maggie Pemberton, Miss Annie H. Green, Dr. J. A. Hodges, Dr. H. W. Lilly, Capt. Jno. B. Broadfoot and Messrs. W. N. Williams and C. L. Campbell. The chase was very successful, two foxes being jumped, and both brushes secured.

Horseback riding is the most delightful recreation in the world, and fox-hunting is the perfection of equestrian exercise. The only fault that could ever be laid to the charge of Southern manly and chivalric courtesy in the treatment of the fair women of the land has been a sheltering devotion carried to the extreme. They have been our marvelously lovely but too fragile flowers, and that is an excellent departure in the forms of amusement which we offer them that will tend to more robust physical growth.

The pleasures of the chase are not incompatible with modest femininity. Di Vernon's ability to take a five-barred gate did not detract from her charms as the dearest sweetheart in the world; and, though she swayed her graceful form over the flying steed as she essayed to be in "at the death," she was the type of pure, noble womanhood through it all.

Religious Notes.

Rev. T. P. Barclay, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of this city, on Sunday morning last announced to his congregation the gratifying contents of a letter received from the pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Reidsville, to the effect that the meeting conducted there by Mr. W. P. Fife had been attended by most beneficial results—hundreds of all classes evincing the most fervent interest in the vital question of their souls' salvation.

Of the conclusion of this truly wonderful meeting the Reidsville Review of the 23rd inst. says:

The closing exercises last night were solemn and impressive. All the pastors made fitting remarks of thanks to God, and words of tribute to the drummer evangelist, endorsing him and endorsing his theology, and each confessing that he felt himself done good. Then all standing, five hundred souls or more, a covenant of christian prayer was entered into not to forget Bill Fife in his wanderings, and the thirteen day meeting closed by singing, with tears in their eyes at the parting hour, "God be with you till we meet again." He goes to the town of Washington—there were ten conversions last night.

To an audience which packed the body of the Church, the galleries and the aisles in which extra seats had been arranged, Rev. W. B. Oliver, pastor of the Baptist Church, on Sunday night closely and exhaustively analyzed the Pharisee's self-gratulatory prayer: "Lord, I thank Thee that I am not as other men are." The average Bible reader is prone to dismiss the Pharisee with indifference and contempt, who really merits respectful attention and even admiration. He possessed a character of which he had a right to be proud:—he was a man of unimpeached honesty—for he was not an extortioner, a just man—which in the original tongue carried with it also a well-balanced judgment and trustworthiness in dealings with his fellow-men, nor was he an adulturer; besides, he fasted two days in every week, and gave tithes of all he possessed. There is a wide difference between reputation and character, and this was not only the Pharisee's reputation with the world (for that reputation might have been undeservedly won), but his character—an aggregation of qualities to which he had an inner consciousness he could lay claim—qualities which he claimed in communing with his Maker (and when men speak to their God, even the worst of them, they are apt to tell the truth). He knew that he wronged no man; that he treated all classes with exact justice; that he led a moral life, committing no offense against society, and preserving unsullied his manhood; that he respected the rules and observances of the church; that he gave freely, generously to all worthy objects.

Yet was not this man justified—he who thanked God that he was not as the poor publican, standing afar off, smiting his breast, and asking: "God, be merciful to me, a sinner"—for he trusted not in Christ, but in his own strength. All that he was in character, all that he had wrought in good deeds, made up the simple sum of his bare duty to himself and his fellows, leaving nothing for God. If we pursue a like course, like the post-diluvians who reared that tower higher, and higher, and higher, to escape the wrath of God, and were scattered to the four quarters of the earth in a Babel of tongues, in the last great day there will be naught left of us, and our characters, and our good deeds, but a pile of ruins.

Mr. Oliver is easy and—what is more rare—polished in the pulpit; his voice, without being musical, is finely modulated and kept well in hand. While he does not disclaim the graceful adjuncts of oratory, his earnestness and his close binding of his discourse to sound religious doctrine are evidence that he subordinates this gift to the great work of saving souls.

New Offices.

The Postal Telegraph and Commercial Cable Company has recently opened offices at the following important points: Portsmouth, Norfolk and Suffolk, Va.

Hymeneal.

Mr. W. B. Young, of the firm of Messrs. Young Brothers, clothing manufacturers, of this city, was united in marriage on Wednesday evening last to Miss Hattie Kincaid, of Atlanta, a charming young lady of the "Gate City" of Georgia. Mr. and Mrs. Young arrived here on Saturday evening last, and are registered at the Hotel LaFayette. With sincere wishes for unalloyed happiness in wedded life, we cordially welcome Mrs. Young to the hospitalities of Fayetteville.

Beasley—McDuffie.

On Tuesday evening last, at 8:30 o'clock, in the Baptist Church in this city, Mr. B. F. Beasley was united in marriage to Miss Annie McDuffie, Rev. W. B. Oliver performing the ceremony. There were no bridal attendants, the ushers being Dr. W. H. Marsh and Messrs. W. B. Malloy, R. H. Holland and Q. K. Nimocks. The entrance of the wedding party into the church, the floral decorations of which were superb and profuse, completed a very impressive scene. The bride's personal charms and winning loveliness were enhanced, if possible, by a toilette in exquisite taste, and the large audience followed with rapt attention the solemn and imposing services.

No wishes for the future happiness of the wedded pair are more sincere than ours.

Malloy—Newberry.

Mr. W. B. Malloy was married to Miss Carrie Newberry, in the Methodist Episcopal Church yesterday morning at 8:15 o'clock, Rev. Joseph Wheeler, the pastor, officiating, assisted by Rev. W. B. Oliver, of the Baptist Church. There were no bridemaids and grooms, and the ushers were: Dr. J. H. Marsh, Q. K. Nimocks, James Hollingsworth and Thos. Warren. The soft light of wax candles artistically arranged about the chancel and altar fell upon an arch of evergreen beneath which stood and joined hands the happy couple, and flowers fair as the fingers that wove them into bouquets and wreaths made a fit setting for the picture.

With the heartiest good-will our slipper of good omen and shower of rice follow them.

We'll "Meet You at the Cross Roads."

Our Durham friends know a good thing when they see it, and we may expect them at the Centennial en masse. Read what the Recorder says:

Our boys are getting ready for the Centennial that takes place at Fayetteville next month. Every vacant place around that old town will be dotted with the tents of different companies, which will present an appearance more suggestive of war than of peace. The Durham L. I expect to make a good turn-out, and as regards drill and number hope to hold their own with the best.

Come on, then, boys—the bigger the crowd the heartier the welcome. We'll save you the softest ridge-pole in the bed and the first hoe-cake the cook turns off the griddle.

This Is Business.

Mr. Julian S. Carr, Chief Marshal of the Fayetteville Centennial, is well-fitted for the arduous duties which will fall within his province on that occasion, as is evidenced by the following text of a business-like and comprehensive letter of instructions to his assistant marshals:

I am arranging so that the matter will cause you as little annoyance and care as possible. I will have all the regalia made at Fayetteville on your arrival. I will arrange to have horses at Fayetteville for each member of my staff. The only item that I fear trouble from is being able to furnish saddles and bridles sufficient. I promise to do everything in my power to accomplish this, but I deem it wise to request any gentleman who has been named on my staff, and who has a good bridle and saddle, to ship the same by express to Fayetteville at least by November 13th. Ship in my care, LaFayette Hotel, Fayetteville, N. C., and I will see that arrangements are made for the safe storage of the same. If I have no occasion to communicate further with you please report for duty at the LaFayette Hotel, Fayetteville N. C., on the evening of November 19th.

Tribute of Respect.

At a meeting of the vestry of the Episcopal Chapel of the Cross, Chapel Hill, N. C., held last week, the following was unanimously passed, expressive of a sense of the loss sustained by the community and the Church in the death of Dr. W. P. Mallett, a former citizen of Fayetteville:

It has pleased Almighty God to remove from this life our friend Wm. P. Mallett, M. D., for many years Junior Warden of this Vestry. He that healed so many mortal bodies has been summoned by the Great Physician to spiritual salvation. We cherish a pleasing memory of his long and earnest christian life, of his humane and benevolent character, of his gentle and kindly nature, of his courteous manners, of his skillful art in healing and of his generous labors for the poor and afflicted. The church, the parish and the community have suffered the loss of a friend and worker whose place will not easily be supplied. His life has been a precious lesson of faith, of kindness, of diligent employment of the talents entrusted to his keeping. His last act was to prescribe for a sick child, and his last thoughts were of quiet submission to the will of God and of communion with His Body. He has gone to his eternal rest, leaving behind him the fragrance of a pure and useful life.

We mingle our sorrow with that of his stricken family, and weep rather for them than for him. May God heal them of their grief.

Pull for the Centennial Celebration in Fayetteville Nov. 20th, 21st and 22nd, 1889.

Chufas.

Mr. Alex. Bolton, of Carver's Creek, was in yesterday, and is much delighted with his first experience with chufas. He had under cultivation this year one acre, from which he tells us that he fattened 1,000 pounds of pork, besides giving several bushels of seed to his neighbors. We must admit that Mr. B's experiment with chufas is far better than that of most people.

One of the Great Attractions.

The fire works display here at the Centennial Celebration will undoubtedly be unprecedented in attractions; and the Wilmington Messenger, in a handsome article about the great occasion in November, has the following:

We are pleased also to note another attractive feature of the occasion. The fire works are to be on a magnificent scale as never before witnessed in North Carolina. We had the pleasure of meeting Major H. M. Funston, at the Orton, in this city, last night, and he states that the people may expect to witness on this occasion one of the finest displays of fireworks ever made in the South. Major Funston is vice president of the Detwiller & Street Fireworks Manufacturing Company, of New York, and will supervise the pyrotechnic display, of which there will be twenty set pieces, besides an unending and brilliant aerial exhibition.

Will Certainly Be Here.

The Washington Correspondent of the Wilmington Messenger has now ascertained that he was mistaken in announcing the other day that the United States Marine Band could probably not be secured for the Fayetteville Centennial, and sends the following to the Messenger under date of October 28:

I understand that Senator Ransom secured the promise of the President that the Marine Band should go to Fayetteville. The Secretary of the Navy was therefore perhaps as much surprised as anybody else when he found out the band was to go. General Ransom is a host in himself when he determines to accomplish anything, and I will guarantee no other town the size of Fayetteville in this country ever secured this splendid band for any occasion of similar importance. The Marine Band, led by Prof. Sousa, splendidly uniformed as it is, will prove quite an attraction to our people. This is one more evidence of the superior tact and great influence of our distinguished senior Senator, whose silver-tongued oratory will charm even more on that notable occasion than the combined harmonies of the famous band, whose services he has secured.

Woman's Modesty.

Many women are prevented by feelings of delicacy from consulting a physician in those disorders arising from functional derangement of their peculiarly delicate organism, and the most serious results are often caused by this neglect. To such persons Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is an especial boon, as it offers a sure and safe cure for all those distressing disorders to which women are peculiarly subject, while it saves a modest girl or woman from the embarrassment of a personal consultation with a physician. "Favorite Prescription" is the only medicine for woman's peculiar weaknesses and ailments, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee from the manufacturers that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. See guarantee on bottle wrapper.

THE Washington National Democrat is doing a great work for the national Democratic party.

GOV. HILL'S little Georgia boom seems to have struck a shoal before landing at New York harbor.

THE Chicago Herald warns the Democrats against forming their opinions of GOV. HILL too quickly.

THE Richmond Dispatch says the out look for Democratic success in Virginia is "bright and brightening."

MURAT HALSTEAD continues the war on FORAKER—that little fool who happened to be elected Governor of Ohio.

CONGRESS will be asked to appropriate $22,000,000 to continue the building of the new vessels for the Navy.

THE appointment of RAUM has by no means ended the pension scandal, as the public will see a little later on.

JUDGE JOSEPH J. DAVIS, of the Supreme Court, continues critically ill, and all hopes of his recovery are practically abandoned.

COL. L. L. POLK and Commissioner JOHN ROBINSON of the State Agricultural Department are making faces at each other.

VANDERBILT is "mashed" on Asheville, and proposes to erect there a modern palace, where he will hereafter reside at intervals.

CHIEF JUSTICE MILLER'S Presidential boom for '92 is the "latest agony," but Mr. Miller flatly declines the honor as though there was danger.

THE American Forestry Congress has asked the Federal Congress to establish a forestry commission for the preservation of public forests. A good move, we think.

AT the Episcopal Convention in New York City the "colored brother" has been "sat down upon" summarily—and it was not done by the Southern members, either.

The great State of Illinois wants to secede from the Harrison administration. Do you observe the "fine Italian hand" of Judge Gresham? The appointment of one Green B. Raum as pension commissioner seems to have been "the straw that made the Illinois camel lie down on the prairie, and refuse to longer carry the administration."

SAYS the St. Louis Republic: "The revolt of the Iowa farmers against the Republican party promises to be of great advantage to sound and honest government. The increase of education and enlightenment has been so rapid in Iowa that it may be expected to become a Democratic State in the near future." Let the campaign of education go bravely on.

MAJ. W. A. HEARNE, one of the most talented writers in the State, has become editor of the Goldsboro Mercury. Maj. Hearne was for a long time editor of the Wilmington Messenger, and as a writer of eloquence and beauty he has indeed few equals in the State. The Mercury is to be congratulated upon the acquisition of one so thoroughly equipped for the arduous duties of editor-in-chief.

"MR. HARRISON might give some of the numerous office seekers hanging around Washington a job catching some of those White House rats." There is no absolute necessity of this, if it should be found, on trial, that "Rough on Rats" is powerless to make them "skeedaddle." If the denizens of the White House can stand the racket of the rats until about the close of the present administration, they will leave the building echoless—for "rats always desert a sinking ship."

THAT is a lively political storm brewing out in Illinois and expected to reach Washington about the time Congress meets. The two Senators from that State are to head an open revolt against the administration. The grievances are many and various. But the one that caps all others is spoils—or rather lack of spoils. Messrs. CULLOM and FARWELL feel that they have not had their share of the patronage usually conceded to Senators, and they propose to make a rumpus about it. The outbreak promises to be a genuine political sensation, and the public will await it with keen relish. The story is told in our Washington dispatches this morning.—New York Herald.

SOUTH Carolina has just experienced the first dueling sensation since the famous Cash duel of 1879. A special from Charleston to the Herald of the 21st states that "Capt. E. R. WALKER, of Orangebug, a leader in the Farmers' Alliance, has broken the quiet by challenging H. S. CUNNINGHAM, editor of the Orangeburg Spectator. Cunningham, it seems, reported one of Capt. Walker's speeches, and put words in his mouth that Walker repudiated. In course of a controversy Cunningham ridiculed Captain Walker, and hinted that he fought with his mouth more than with weapons. Captain Walker challenged Cunningham. The challenge was declined by Cunningham, whereupon, Capt. Walker published the correspondence.

THE BROKEN HARP.

WILLIAM WINTER.

If this now silent harp could wake,
How pure, how strong, how true
The tender strains its chords would make
Of love and grief for you!
But like my heart, though faithful long,
By you cast forth to pain,
This hushed and frozen voice of song
Must never live again.

Yet haply when your fancy strays
O'er unregarded things,
And half in dream your gentle gaze
Falls on its shattered strings,
Some loving impulse may endear
Your memories of the past,
And if for me you shed one tear,
I think 'twould wake at last;

Wake with a note so glad, so clear,
So lovely, so complete,
That birds on wing would pause to hear
Its music wild and sweet;
And you would know—alas, too late!—
How tender and how true
Is this fond heart that hugs its fate—
To die for love and you.

$5,000 Found in a Tree.

Lynchburg Virginian.]

A treasure up a tree was seen in the watches of the night by a peddler, who was sleeping in a farm house in the Shenandoah Valley. He told his dream to the farmer next morning, and on three successive nights he had the same vision. Then he prevailed on the farmer to accompany him to the forest, where he pointed out a large oak tree as the one he had seen in his dream. It was apparently sound at the butt, but about twenty feet up a limb had been broken off. The farmer did not feel like humoring what he supposed to be a superstitious whim, but theold fellow seemed to have confidence in his vision, and offered him one-half of the spoils if he would help him cut down the tree. When the tree fell there was a rattle of coin near where the limb had been broken off, and a small hollow was found there. By a little chopping a larger cavity was found, and within was a mass of silver. Both seemed wild with delight, and counting up found that the pile amounted to $5,000. The peddler expressed his unwillingness to carry around so much silver in his pocket, and inquired where he would be likely to get greenbacks for his share. The farmer, having considerable money in his house, immediately transferred to the peddler $2,500 in paper money, and took charge of the entire lot of silver. The peddler disappeared, and when his partner attempted to pass some of the silver lo! it was counterfeit. He was the victim of a gang of coiners.

How Deep Does the Earth Quake?

St. Louis Republic.]

California and the Pacific coast have recently experienced one of the most severe earthquake shocks known in that region in years—an incident which revives interest in the question: How deeply does the earthquake when convulsive nature shakes her crust like a circus tent in a cyclone? At Virgina City, Nev., the earthquake of 1879 was not noticed by the miners in the great Comstock mines, but only by people on the surface. The famous earthquake at the same place in 1874 or 1875, which shook down chimneys, fire-walls and cracked every brick building in the town, was merely noticed by some of the miners working in the upper levels, but it did them no damage, not even shaking down loose rocks and earth. The station men in the various shafts felt it the strongest, and the deepest point where it was noticed was by the station-tender at 900 foot level of the Imperial Empire shaft, 900 feet below the surface He said he felt a faint throb or pulsation of air, as though a blast had been fired above, below, or in some indefinite direction. In some of the mines the shock was not felt at all, even by the station men in the shafts. Commenting on this curious fact at the time, the Gold Hill News remarked that the earthquake seemed to be an electrical disturbance, proceeding from the atmosphere and not from the depths of the earth.

Danger In Newly-Built Houses.

Scientific American.]

There is too great haste in occupying a house after its completion. In many places there is such demand for dwellings and often business apartments that, as soon as finished, they are occupied. This is especially true of small dwellings. There is more danger in this than is generally supposed. There is no health in dampness and mould under any circumstances, and in living apartments, where the tendency is towards poor ventilation, the dampness of newly-finished houses contributes largely to ill-health. In the town of Basle, Switzerland, a regulation has been adopted which prevents newly-built houses from being occupied until four months after completion. Under many circumstances so long a time as above specified is not necessary, but it is often best to err on the side of safety. The size of the house, its location, surroundings, the material used, and the state of the weather enter into the consideration of the time necessary in which a building should become sufficiently dry for occupancy.

The Way Papa Open the Door.

Lewiston Journal.

A friend of mine was visiting in the family of a well-known Maine man not long ago. A lovely flaxen-haired child of six years, the pet of the family, attempted to open a door, which stuck. She pulled and pulled, but could not move it.

"D—n it!" they were astonished to hear her say as she gave a supreme tug to make the door yield.

"What do you mean, Maud?" exclaimed the horrified mamma.

"That's the way papa opens it," said Maud, innocently.

A Curious Army Corps.

Perhaps the most curious army battalion is that of the Norwegian corps of skaters. This corps is composed of picked men with rifles which they use with great precision. The skates used are six inches broad, and between nine and ten inches long, and admirably adapted for traveling over rough and broken ice or snow. The soldiers can be manœuvred over the ice or snow fields or mountains with a rapidity equal to that of the best trained cavalry. As an instance of their speed, it is said that a messenger of this corps accomplished one hundred and twenty miles in eighteen and half hours over a mountainous country.

☞The Raleigh correspondtent of the Petersburg Index-Appeal states that Mr. Paul C. Cameron has agreed to donate his handsome residence at Hillsboro as one of the proposed soldiers' homes.

☞Carriage manufacturers are predicting that in the not distant future wooden wheels will be done away with, and steel wheels substituted, on account of the increasing scarcity of lumber for wheels.

The New York Herald thinks that the reason that the delegates to the Pan-American Congress will not visit the South is "because the South has no rights which a Republican is bound to respect."

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

The World Moves!

Get Up and Ride!!

When the Big Guns in the Dry Goods trade, who are supposed to buy their goods on long time, insist on selling everything to everybody for strict cash, we think it is time for us heathen, who have to pay cash and cash only for our goods before we can ever see them, to follow in their illustrious footsteps.

It is a well-known fact that all dealers n Grain are compelled by the commercial law of the times to pay for their supplies before they can get them, however much such dealers may be worth, or however they may be.

We have decided therefore to adopt the same rule in selling that we have to abide by in buying. In our case, this should always have been the rule. The unbusiness-like methods of others being our only excuse for wrong-doing, we trust that all of our patrons will "catch on" to the "new departure," and show their appreciation of our endeavors in the past to please them, by continuing to give us their patronage.

Recollect that we sell you

Meal and Feed

AT THE

of the unground material.

We also hold that to endeavor to do a

Hand to Hand Cash Transaction with every purchase is not only impracticable but also unbusiness-like, and we wish it distinctly understood that accounts with parties of a known place of business, that are always promptly paid on presentation without any foolishness, is in our opinion cash.

Ye Olden Times.

Webster's Weekly.]

We would not be classed as an old fogy, but there are some kinds of progress which have not our sympathy. We do not believe in clinging to old notions when better ones are presented; but when this is not the case, it is better to walk in the safe paths. We regret to see a tendency among some churches to discontinue the old hymns of our fathers, and substitute for them the light jubilee songs of modern hymn writers. When this is not done a chorus is added to the old hymns which conveys a meaning never intended by the authors. Sunday school-songs do well enough in their places; they are suited to the merry hearts of the children—but they should not take the place of the majestic old hymns of Watts, Wesley and others. The old hymns and tunes are inseparable—they should remain together. They have afforded comfort to the saints, and have placed a yearning in the sinner's heart to seek forgiveness and enjoy communion with God. Do not abolish them in public worship, or sing them with new-fangled tunes. They have not accomplished their full mission in raising man to communion with his father. Let it not be said of this generation that it discarded the old hymns which have given utterance sublime to the soul's most noble sentiments, and exchanged them for the light, fantastic effusions of late song composers. Oh, for more of the old-fashioned singing! Do not accuse us of being a critic. We are not a professor of music, but we know a good tune when we hear it. There is something dear to us about the old songs, and it is like parting with old friends when we take leave of them. These words are only offered as suggestions, but we are sure they are the sentiments of a great number of our readers.

Historic Locomotive.

Wilmington Review.]

The historic locomotive, "General," will soon be pulling a long train from Dublin to Empire, Ga. It was the old "General" which figured in "Anderson's raid," a brief sketch of which is as follows: One day, in 1863, a train from Atlanta stopped at Big Shanty. This engine was attached to it. While the conductor and all the train men were inside eating, Capt. Anderson, a Federal officer, with several men, boarded the engine, detached it from the train, and ran off with it towards Chattanooga. Capt. Anderson's intention was to tear up the track and burn all the bridges on the Western & Atlantic Road between Atlanta and Chattanooga, so as to deprive the Tennessee Confederates of communication with Atlanta. After a run of about fifty miles, the fuel gave out. About ten miles further the steam gave out, and as the conductor, Capt. Fuller, was close upon the party with another engine, Capt. Anderson and his men took to the woods. All but three were captured, and taken to Atlanta and hanged as spies. Anderson was among the number. That was twenty-six years ago, and the engine has been in use at times ever since, although it has been several times repaired.

Articles Found in Cotton Bales.

According to the Providence Journal, at the Wampanoag Mill not long ago, the workmen in the picker room stopped a package of matches just as the bundle was disappearing into the picker. It had come out of a cotton bale the men had just opened. Had they gone into the machine, there would have been a lively blaze. Speaking of this incident, a man who has tended a picker for several years said that the things which come out of a cotton bale and evidently grow on bushes would astonish one. One day he heard something grind inside the picker, and, stopping the machine, he found a silver spoon. Lizzards and snakes were common. A set of small teeth, small coins, knives, tobacco, and occasionally articles of more value have been found. These things undoubtedly get inside the bales accidentally, but there are other things which evidently get inside in accordance with a fixed purpose, and by strange coincidence they are found to weigh more than cotton, and not to be worth as much per pound on the market. Sand, scap-iron, and dirt are often found wrapped inside a cotton bale for ballast.

How Agriculture is Handicapped.

Baltimore Sun.]

It will probably be a surprise to our farmers, tobacco and cotton planters and raisers of hogs and beef cattle to learn that seventy-three per cent. of all the exports that constitute the basis of our exchanges with foreign countries are derived from agriculture. The official reports of 1882 show that the total value of all exports of domestic merchandise was $683,-802,104. Of this aggregation of exports the value of the agricultural exports of all kinds amounted to $500,840,040, while the total amount of our manufactured products exported was but $183,022,064. The backbone, therefore, of all our dealings with foreign countries is our agriculture. It is the fate of our farming, planting and stock-raising population that the home price of all agricultural commodities is governed by the price they bring in foreign markets, and is in no way benefited by the tariff, whereas the tariff puts an extra price on all the farmer buys by excluding competition. The consequence is that the farmer, the planter and the stock-raiser are compelled to sell at prices fixed for them abroad, and to buy at prices fixed for them at home.

Another from Vance.

Senator Gorman, in speaking at a political meeting in Baltimore on Monday night, in referring to certain pious-professing Independent Democrats, said: "Senator Vance takes all sorts of liberties in the Senate, but always with propriety, and in speaking once of the class of men whom I have just described, and who attempt to control the consciences and votes of those under them, he said that such people always affect an air of virtue. They remind him, he said, of a song he had heard, which ran like this:

"The darkies on the old camp-ground who loudest sing and shout
Are going to steal somebody's hen-roost before the week is out."

[Laughter.]

What Kid Gloves are Made of.

A leading glove manufacturer, speaking of the skins from which kid gloves are made, said: Other skins than those of the rat tribe are worked up into gloves, but as a rule no other animal than the rat divides with the real kid the honor of taking beauty by the hand, as it were. However, a formidable rival has entered the field in the eel. Manufacturers from Gloversville have been sending agents up Schuylerville way, where the waters teem with eels, to buy up the crop for gloves. Gloves from this material will hold their own with the the skin of the most reliable rat. Eel-skin gloves will be perfectly impervious to water.

Disgusted because she had no one to play with, our little three-year-old got up in my lap and wailed, "O auntie, I'm all out of happy."

Wanted to Die Rich.

When the ship Brittania was wrecked on the rocks of the coast of Brazil, it had on board a large amount of silver. The passengers, to save themselves, took to the life-boats. When the last boat was about to push off, a midshipman ran back to see if all had left the sinking ship. To his surprise, he found a man remaining behind, who was clutching a barrel of Spanish silver dollars. "What are you doing?" exclaimed the midshipman. "Escape for your life! Don't you see that the ship is sinking?" "The ship may sink," said the man; "I have lived a poor wretch all my life, and I am determined to die rich." So he went down to a watery grave, but he had the pleasure of thinking himself rich for one moment.

We call this man a madman, an egregious fool—and so he was. But how many men living on dry land are doing about the same thing! They make and keep all they get. The use of money to them is merely to have, to hold, to keep it. They work hard, dress plainly, live in uncomfortable houses, and have but little to eat. They hold their silver dollar tight enough to "make the eagle squeal." They are bomb-proof to all religious appeals. What do they mean? Simply to die rich. Like the hog in the pen, they are going to die fat. What then? When death comes it finds them clinging to their silver.

Dressing the Boy.

"Elijah, dear, will you dress Willie this morning? I'm in such a hurry, and it won't take but a minute or two."

"Certainly," replied Mr. Bixby, cheerfully; "I'd just as soon dress the 'kid' as not. Here, little chap, come and let papa dress you. I'll have you as neat as a pin in a jiffy."

Willie aged four, comes reluctantly from his playthings, and Bixby begins:

"Now, let's off with your nighty gown and—keep still, dear, or I can't unbutton it. There, now, we'll—stand still, child. What makes you squirm around like an eel? Where's your little shirty? Ah, here it is, and—stand still! Put up your arm—no, the other one, and—can't you keep still a half-second? Put up your other arm, and stop hauling and pulling so! Now let's—come here, boy! What under heaven do you mean by racing off like that, with nothing on but your shirt? Now, you come here, and let me put the rest of your duds on. Stand still, I say! Put your leg in here! Not that leg! There you go, squirming around like an angle-worm. Now, if you don't keep still, young man, I'll—stop pulling at that chain, and—here, Mary Ellen, you'll have to dress this wriggling animal yourself. I couldn't do it in ten years. Go to your mother, sir!"

The Forger's Pen.

Pall Mall Gazette.]

I was talking with a Treasury official on the subject of forgery. "Did it ever occur to you," said the official, "that a forger has half his work done when he can get hold of the identical pen with which the owner of the signature habitually writes? A great many men—bank presidents and the like—use the same pen for only their names for a year or two without change. A pen that has been used by a man in writing his name hundreds of times, and is never used for anything else, will almost write the name of itself. It becomes imbued with the spirit of the signature. In the hands of a fairly good forger it will preserve the characteristics of the original. The reason for this is that the point of the pen has been ground down in a peculiar way, from being used always by the same hand and for the same combination of letters. It would splutter if held at a wrong angle, or forced on lines against its will. It almost guides the sensitive hand of the forger when he attempts to write the name."

Identifying Mr. Johnson.

"Is there a Mr. Johnson in this car?" called a conductor as he entered a coach on a Lehigh Valley train, while holding up a telegram to view.

"There is!" replied three men in chorus, as they rose to their feet.

"This dispatch is for John Johnson."

"That's me!" replied two of them, while the third looked relieved, and sat down.

"Which of you is married?" continued the conductor.

"I am," both answered.

"Well, I think this dispatch relates to the birth of twins at home, and is congratulatory."

"That lets me out, thank heaven!" exclaimed one Johnson, wiping his brow as he sat down, while the other flushed red and white as he received the dispatch.

A Noble Woman.

Perhaps Clara Barton does not care to have her name in print, or to have her deeds heralded, but it is a curious fact that for the last century those who have come to the front in doing the gigantic work of relief in disaster, and leading in ministration to the suffering, have been women. The names of Florence Nightingale and Dorothea Dix have become immortal, and that of Clara Barton will live as long as American history continues to be read. She appears always as if by magic whenever any great disaster occurs, and at once organizes relief. That is, she has a genius for help. She is now President of a confederation of societies of all civilized lands, called the "Red Cross Association, for relief in war, famine, pestilence and other national calamities."

Beautiful Swedish Women.

A gentleman who has traveled considerably, in speaking of the beauty of foreign women, says that he believes the Swedish peasant women to be the most beautiful in all the world. The young matrons are like madonnas, and the girls are ideals of pure and exqusite maidenhood. Their quaint peasants' dress and head-gear add to their charms, and he has brought home photographs of these women that would each one make an ideal head for a painter.

A Blue Grass Palace.

Creston, Iowa, is to have a grass palace. Corn palaces have been of late years rather common, but the grass palace is something new. This palace, which looks more like a castle, is 100 feet square and 120 feet high, and it is decorated inside and out with all the different grasses and cereals of Southwestern Iowa.

Miss Slymme—How do you like my new dress?

Miss Plompe—It is very prettily made up, but there is rather a queer figure in it, I think.

(About thirty minutes later) Miss Slymme—I wonder if that hateful thing was referring to me? These goods are perfectly plain.

Mrs. Oldboy—Now, John, you needn't say one word—you was bound to have me; you know I never run after you.

Mr. Oldboy—No; the trap doesn't run after the mouse, but it gathers him in, all the same.

Fangle—What is the most melancholy spectacle, Cumso, that you eve witnessed?

Cumso—A man with long side-whiskers in swimming.

"STILL HARPING ON MY DAUGHTER."

The people of the Northern section of this great Union are worthy of all the possibilities and all the achievements of their country—enterprising, generous, public-spirited, fully in accord with and, in fact, themselves creating the progressive trend of the times.

But, fastened upon them, throughout their splendid cities and bustling communities, like barnacles on a ship's sides or the dry rot in the timbers of a beautiful building, are festering sores on the body politic, like General Tecumseh Sherman—whom the New York Star likens to a broken-down old war-horse turned out to grass, or Col. Elliot F. Shepherd, editor of the New York Mail and Express—who recently abused an opportunity presented at Detroit to gratuitously insult his newspaper confreres in one section of the country.

It is pitiful to see so much venom in so old a man as Gen. Sherman—especially at the close of a life which has been stained with such ruthless cruelty. Because we have rebuilt the houses and factories and towns that he burned, and have replaced the household goods and the farming implements that he wantonly destroyed, and have prayed God to forgive him for the outrages that he inflicted upon our women and the atrocities that he practiced upon our old men and children; because we have made the blossoming vine to clamber over the piles of ruins and the flower to spring up out of desolation—this venerable but not benignant leader of victorious armies feels his withered heart verily stirred with bile within him. Col. Shepherd pauses in his crusade against the naughty saloons—that work of charity by which he is to inaugurate a veritable Utopia of spotless morality throughout the whole earth; his eagle glance flashes away off to the "Bad Lands" of the South, where the skirts of a quiet, smiling plantation are laved by the muddy waters of the Mississippi, and forthwith he lifteth up a warning voice: Lo! the arch-traitor, with crest up-reared—not a shred of sackcloth or a handful of ashes anywhere about him; he is "firing the Southern heart," and the rebels are blowing horns, and beating drums, and waving flags!—and straightway the wind whistles through the flapping folds of the "bloody shirt" like the hissing of the storm through the cordage of a ship at sea.

In the meantime, the Southern people are honestly fulfilling their pledges of citizenship, and peace and good order prevail within our borders; we are sending able and patriotic men to the halls of Congress, worthy of their country and their fathers before them; we are developing our material resources with a recuperative power which is winning the admiration of the world; we are welcoming to our midst men from every section of our common country, asking nothing of their politics or religion, so they be prepared to identify themselves with us in the promotion of the prosperity of all; our civil allegiance is as sincere as that of those on the other side of Mason & Dixon's line:—but we will not stultify ourselves and the past by casting discredit on those who made that past illustrious, be they living or dead. "Hence those tears."

THE OLD WAY THE BEST WAY.

We sometimes hear of men of whom it is said that "hanging is too good for them," and recent developments as to electricity as a death-dealing agent would lead us to conclude that this subtle fluid pervading earth and air will about do for accomplishing the end of the criminal too base even for the hangman's noose. So far from electricity furnishing a painless method of death in executions under the law, it is probable that its application to the human system is attended by the most fearful physical torture—varying in duration with the different organisms of different men. The unfortunate lineman Feeks, who was recently killed in New York City while endeavoring to adjust an electric wire, apparently suffered a thousand deaths for whole minutes—doubtless a lifetime of agony to the victim—in the gaze of a street full of people.

As germain to this subject, we read a few years since an article in the London Lancet, a paper of high repute among scientific men, in which the idea, then just forming in the brains of a few men, was scouted that electricity could ever be successfully or mercifully used as a mode of capital punishment. The writer also declared that Guillotin had devised the most inhuman method of inflicting death in that instrument which gathered its victims from the timbrels by hundreds, and reddened with blood the cobble-stones of the streets of Paris during the French Revolution. Decapitation, strange to relate, does not produce instantaneous insensibility to pain; on the contrary, the brain lives and has consciousness for minutes, perhaps hours, after the head is severed from the body. In view of this ghastly fact, it would appear as if the good old fashion of hanging would hold its own among the advocates of capital punishment.

The New Yorkers are pegging away at the World's Fair, and have already subscribed nearly $1,000,000. If those people once determine to have that World's Fair, they will certainly accomplish their object.

A Letter From Duplin.

KENANSVILLE, N. C., Oct. 22, '89.

For the Observer.]

MESSRS. EDITORS:—The Farmers' Alliance has acted wisely in employing Prof. B. F. Grady to visit and lecture to each of the twenty-five Alliances of the county. Prof Grady, we learn, is thinking of moving his Industrial school to a point nearer the railroad.

Prof. Noble has found the following persons worthy of his State certificates: L. V. Grady, W. E. Wooten, L. A. Beasley, R. D. Kornegay, Maury Ward, Miss Emma Chambers, Miss Leila Thornton and Hiram Brown, colored.

The greater number of our public schools are in session, and our County Superintendent will soon begin visiting them.

Miss Rossie Williams has been elected teacher of the primary department in the Kenansville High School.

We are glad to report Mr. Cox and his family out of danger. Every member of the family has been sick with typhoid fever. With these exceptions, our villagers are enjoying the best of health.

We had the pleasure of meeting B. F. Marable, who paid a short visit to our town, as the guest of Henry Farriar, Esq.

A few weeks ago in a visit to Chinquepin, we were struck with the marked improvement of the people of that section. The juice of the pine has been well nigh exhausted, and they are now turning their attention to agriculture. Quite an advance, too, can be seen in the religious matters of that village.

Tired of the Negro.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 25.—A movement has been started here to do away with negro servants and substitute white servants. There are few white domestic servants here, but it is proposed to import them. The organization has already been formed in a quiet way for this purpose. A prominent citizen suggests that a public meeting be called in the next few days to "boom" the movement. A wealthy broker has published a letter in which he says: "The question, What shall we do with the negro? is before the people to-day, demanding an answer more emphatic than ever before. We must deal with it, and without further delay settle it in a positive way. Say what the sentimentalists of the North may, the Southern people have been patient and forbearing long enough, and to stand longer in our light is to be untrue to our section and to those who are to follow in our places. We have argued and pleaded with these people only to receive their answer at the polls: we are opposed to you and your method. Freedom and education have resulted thus far in an increased percentage of lunacy among the negroes, while morally the race is drifting most rapidly into a condition simply deplorable and alarming."

The writer then unfolds his plan for getting rid of the negro without violence, by discontinuing their employment and substituting white help. There are ten thousand white merchants in Richmond, but none of their children go into service. It is proposed to induce Swiss, German, Swedes and Irish to accept homes here. A similar movement was tried three or four years ago, but it was not pushed, and it failed.

Wilmington Star.]

Work on the depot buildings at Point Peter is going ahead steadily, and from all appearances they will be completed in a week or two. A freight engine to run over the completed portion of the road, from Wilmington to Black River, will be brought from Fayetteville this week over the Carolina Central. The transfer steamer—the Compton—has not yet arrived, but is daily expected to put in an appearance at Southport.

The trestlework forming the approach to Black River bridge was completed several days ago, under the direction of Mr. D. M. O'Hanlon, resident engineer, and the track was laid to the trestle and probably across the past week. Mr. N. L. Hall, the master bridge builder, with his force of carpenters has left Black River for Fayetteville.

CHARGED WITH MURDER.

Parties Arrested Charged With Lynching Robt. Berrier.

Special to the Charlotte Chronicle.]

LEXINGTON, N. C., Oct. 28.—Twenty-six parties have been arrested for alleged participation in the lynching of Robert Berrier, and the preliminary examination began before Judge Phillips to-day at 12 o'clock.

Sheriff Leonard, of Davidson county, received 32 bench warrants, issued by Judge Phillips, for the arrest of the lynchers. He immediately summoned a large party of the citizens of this place and Thomasville to assist him in making the arrests, and up to 7 o'clock Sunday evening there had been eighteen or twenty men arrested and brought to town charged with murder. The prisoners first arrested were committed to jail; but on the arrival of Judge Phillips and Solicitor Long, the Judge ordered all of them brought before him in the court house about 3 o'clock, where he told them that he had been sent here to thoroughly investigate this lynching case, and to see that the laws of North Carolina were enforced and respected, and that the guilty be brought to punishment; and, while he was determined that this should be done, yet he did not intend to be arbitrary or oppressive to the men arrested. They, he said, should have a speedy trial and a fair and patient hearing.

Every one should have time to get his witnesses, consult counsel, &c. He then ordered that all the prisoners here now, and those that may be brought in during the night, be kept in the court-house instead of the jail, and he swore in a guard to keep them safely until Monday morning.

Up to 10 o'clock this morning twenty five had been arrested, and the sheriff informed me that he thought he would finally arrest all the 32, with the exception of two, who, he thought, had left the county.

The following are the names of all those arrested:

A. C. Wood, B. C. Globe, John Wood, Bently Hunt, McDuff Farabel, Henry Fritz, John Wilson, C. A. Haneo, Henderson Shoaf, John Craver, Jeff Craver, J. N. Craver, J. N. Myers, Charles Swielgood, William Livingood, David Myers, Will Myers, Hamilton Sink, David Wock, Julius Wifong, Plunk Faviels, Joe Sowers, Alf. Green, John Farabee, Royal Shoaf.

A BLOODY FEUD IN KENTUCKY.

The Turners Attack the Howards in Their Stronghold.

PINEVILLE, Ky., Oct. 25.—The trouble which has been brewing in Harlan county for some time past between the Turner and Howard factions has broken out in earnest, and a bloody war is in progress.

Jessie Howard and Joe Blair arrived here this morning from Harlan Court House, bringing particulars of a fight which occurred there Tuesday. Wils Howard had gathered about him twenty-five men and had openly defied the authorities. He threatened destruction to the entire Turner faction, and Howard and his men were intrenched in an improvised fort on Poor Fork, near Harlan Court house.

Judge Lewis with forty men, mostly Turner's sympathizers, essayed to capture the gang, surrounded the rendezvous, and quietly waited for Howard and his men to make their appearance. As soon as the latter sallied forth they were fired upon, and a bloody battle followed.

The Howard party suffered from the first volley, one man being killed and six of the party badly wounded. Wils Howard received a ball in the neck. His brother, John Howard, was also wounded, and will die. Two of Judge Lewis' men were wounded.

Both sides drew away, and Judge Lewis had his men fortified in the court house. Wils Howard is gathering more men, and threatens to make an attack on the town.

The Ohio Republicans.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—It is plainly apparent to the most superficial political observers that the Ohio Republican managers are terribly alarmed over the political situation in that State. One of the strongest proofs of this is the ridiculous stuff which, with the aid of friends here, they are putting into circulation and then telegraphing back to Ohio for local effect. With all the outward boasting of the certainty of ten to twenty thousand majority for Foraker, it has been several weeks since any of the leaders of the party in Ohio have in confidential expressions indicated any hope whatever of his election. Obioans lately arrived here say it is well-known at home that Foraker is not so sick as has been represented, and it is firmly believed he was taken off the stump because his speeches were not only hurting himself but all the rest of the Republican ticket. Having practically abandoned Foraker to his fate, the Republican managers are concentrating their last desperate efforts in the attempt to capture the legislature and get a Republican Senator to succeed Mr. Payne. To cover up their tracks they are coying loudly that the Democrats have given up all hopes of the legislature, and are putting in their best licks to elect Campbell Governor. The Ohio Democrats say this is all balderdash; that they not only expect to elect Campbell but to carry the legislature, and that election day will tell they know what they are about.

Want No Confederate Monuments.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 25.—Governor Beaver was seen last evening in regard to the resolutions adopted by Abe Patterson post No. 88, G. A. R., protesting against the placing of rebel monuments on the battlefield at Gettysburg.

"I read the resolutions this morning," said the Governor, "and they show the right spirit. If the regimental association has purchased the ground outside of that controlled by the Gettysburg Battlefield Association, of course they have a right to erect their monuments. I can assure you, however, that no member of the association will consent to any individual rebel organization erecting monuments within the grounds that bear inscriptions likely to foster treason and disloyalty. I am strongly in favor of Government making appropriations to erect markers on the positions occupied by the Confederate commands as a matter of history."

NO APOLOGIES TO MAKE.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 25.—General Bradly T. Johnson says that the monument erected by the Second Maryland Regiment at Gettysburg was the result of a pressing invitation of Col. Batchellor, the Federal historian of the Gettysburg Memorial Association. There was certainly nothing objectionable in the monument, and the Confederates have no apologies to make.

Jack and Jill each took a pill,
Old-fashioned kind—full grown;
Jack's went down—but with a frown—
Jill died from "cause unknown."

Smiles will supersede many frowns, and many discomforts will be unknown, when Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets entirely supersede, as they bid fair to do, the large and less efficient pill of our forefathers. Every day they gain new laurels! Most popular when most ills abound!

Symptoms of Catarrh.

Dull, heavy headache, obstruction of the nasal passages, discharges falling from the head into the throat, sometimes profuse, watery and acrid, at others, thick, tenacious, mucous, purulent, bloody and putrid; the eyes are weak, watery and inflamed; there is ringing in the ears, deafness, hacking or coughing to clear the throat, expectoration of offensive matter, together with scabs from ulcers; the voice is changed and has a nasal twang; the breath is offensive; smell and taste are impaired; there is a sensation of dizziness, with mental depression, a hacking cough and general debility. If you have all, or any considerable number of these symptoms, you are suffering from Nasal Catarrh. The more complicated your disease has become, the greater the number and diversity of symptoms. Thousands of cases annually, without manifesting half of the above symptoms, result in consumption, and end in the grave. No disease is so common, more deceptive and dangerous, or less understood, or more unsuccessfully treated, by physicians. Five hundred dollars reward is offered by the manufacturers of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy for a case of catarrh which they cannot cure. Remedy sold by druggists. at only 50 cents.
